The highly successful term of office of Professor Raul Urrutia, Rochester, Minn., ends December 31, 2010. The IAP and the publisher are now inviting applications for the position of editor to begin January 1, 2011, for an initial period of three years.

Candidates must have a medical degree and extensive experience in medicine and research – both in clinical and basic science. A demonstrated knowledge and expertise in the field of pancreatology, past editorial experience and the capacity to administer the contents of a journal with an average of 200 submissions per year are essential. The editor will be responsible for generating peer review and – in conjunction with the journal's Editorial Board – will select those articles most worthy of publication. To facilitate procedures, he or she can expect an up-to-date online submission and peer-review system, as well as an in-house editorial office for back-up.

Deadline for the submission of applications is October 30, 2009.

Please submit your curriculum vitae and an outline of your editorial strategy to the publisher and the secretary of the IAP:
