The American Journal of Nephrology is a peer-reviewed journal that focuses on timely topics in both basic science and clinical research. Papers are divided into several sections, including:

- Original reports, spanning clinical, basic and outcomes research
- In-depth topic reviews on specific topics selected by the Editor and Associate Editors
- Invited debates – selected on 'hot topics' determined by the editorial board

Responding to the ever increasing pace in research, the American Journal of Nephrology adheres to a very tight publication schedule: accepted papers appear online within 5–6 weeks of acceptance.

Conditions

The journal will not publish articles which have been previously reported at any length or articles being considered for publication elsewhere. The authors must include a statement to this effect in their cover letter. If publication of the data in any form has occurred or is being contemplated, a copy of such publication should be included with the submitted manuscript. Failure to comply with this directive or discovery of any manuscript text, figure(s), or table(s) duplication will result in immediate retraction of the manuscript and/or article and the authors will not be allowed to submit any future manuscripts to this journal for a period of 3 years.

Submission of an article for publication implies the transfer of the copyright from the author to the publisher upon acceptance.

It is the author's responsibility to obtain permission to reproduce illustrations, tables, etc. from other publications. The manuscript should be written in English and the editors reserve the right to make appropriate corrections in grammar and style.

Accepted papers become the permanent property of the American Journal of Nephrology and may not be reproduced by any means, in whole or in part, without the written consent of the publisher.

Information concerning financial disclosures (i.e. grants, funding, support, etc.) should be placed at the foot of the title page.
